4BBB Matchplay

Due to the high number of teams that have entered this year (40 teams in total) we have had to implement a seeding system in order to cater to a progressive knockout format.

Seeded teams that progressed straight to round 2 were determined using a 'Random Number Generator' program.

Please refer to your scheduled matches:

Matchplay Draw

If you are already drawn against a round 2 team and do not need to wait for the result of a round 1 match to play your round 2 match, you can play that match from May 11.

This year we have given additional time in between rounds to accommodate matches being played. That being said we would recommend that your match is scheduled and played as soon as possible.

If a round of matches is fully completed ahead of time the committee will communicate with the remaining teams and bring the next round of matches forward.

Good luck to all teams competing in this popular board event. Please ensure all matches are played in the right spirit. Play well!

- Green heights have been dropped to 3mm where it will remain all winter
- The rolling of greens is in full swing Tuesday, Thursday, Saturday and Sunday

Exceptionally dry start to 2019 in Melbourne

Melbourne has endured its driest April in 96 years as the city continues its driest start to a year on record.

Only 7.2mm of rain has reached the gauge in Melbourne this month. With no rain expected to fall before 9am on Tuesday, this is likely to become the city's driest April since 1923, when 0mm was recorded throughout the month. This continues an exceptionally and unprecedented dry start to the year.

Melbourne only received 49.0mm of rain during the first four months of 2019. This is the city's lowest January-to-April total in 164 years of records, beating the previous record of 49.1mm from 1923.

Fortunately for brown parks and gardens across the city, rain is likely to fall across Melbourne during the second half of this week.

This week's rain should be enough to hand the title back to 1923, which failed to register any rain during the first several days of May.

Driving Range Closed

The Driving Range will be closed all day next Thursday 9th of May for the Range Upgrade.
